

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

last updated 12/20/2014

Q: Will there be a cost to host a screening?

A: Yes. There will be a nominal fee to screen the film. The costs are one of the details we are still finalizing. We appreciate your patience.

Q: What types of venues are most appropriate to hold a screening?

A: We want as many people to see this film as possible, so we suspect there will be many different types of screenings. You may want to hold a viewing party in your living room, while others may choose to do a larger screening at a local community theater.

Q: I've never hosted a screening. Will you offer support on planning the event?

A: We are in the midst of finalizing a distribution platform that will help hosts of larger events and theater screenings. This platform will help you sell tickets and obtain a public viewing license. Ultimately it will be up to the host to contact the venue and coordinate the logistics of the event.

Q: Can I use the film to raise money for local programs?

A: Yes. We encourage organizations and community groups to use the film to pull people together. We think it's a great idea to use the viewing of the film to raise money for your local program.

Q: What is the appropriate audience to watch this film?

A: This film is ideal for those in the childbirth and mental health community; doctors, doulas, therapists, psychiatrists, nurses, midwives, emergency room staff, pediatricians, entire staff of medical practices, physicians assistants, professors, medical students, community awareness groups, etc.

Q: Is there anyone that SHOULD NOT see this film?

A: This film may be a trigger for those currently suffering from a maternal mental health complication or recently recovering from one. It's also not recommended for use in childbirth education classes or support groups. However, childbirth education instructors should watch this film and discuss maternal mental health complications in their classes, as well as provide resources to them.

Q: What's the cost to have the producers come to the event?
